

Stephanie Perry Moore, author of the popular Payton Skky books for teens, introduces the Novelzine series for young women. This inspirational fiction presented in a magazine format for teen girls ages 11-15 complete with sidebars, photos, callouts, and article-sized chapters invites young readers to explore the story's themes of family, friendship, and faith in new ways. Teenager Faith Thomas' life from the outside looks ideal, but the reality is different. Faith's parents fight, she and her sister have a rivalry, her friends start acting strange, and God seems distant. This engaging, honest, and contemporary story reveals how even in the midst of a young woman's questions, struggles, and surprises, God is in control and making it all work out.
